CLASS POEM

It was not so many moons ago
In a school house not so far away
That we leained to toil and work and grow
And there passed many a happy day.

We lived, as students, with no other thought
Than to work and idle or play.
We never remembered the lessons taught,
We were only too flippant and gay.

And now we have gained the goal
That so painfully has been sought.
Our names shall be marked from the roll,
Our works and our deeds have been wrought.

"May God bless you," as we part,
Each to go a lonely, separate way.
We shall ever hold in our heart
The pain of our parting day.

"Farewell," and now we depart
Leaving a long loved mem'ry behind.
Upon a new road we solemnly start,
We hope the Fates will be kind.

VIRGINIA RAE CREECH

CLASS SONG

Promise us we'll still be friends,
Though our school days now will end.
Promise us we'll be together
In memory again.

Though they say friendships will break up
After graduation day.
We can keep our love for Corinth
And prove there's nothing in what they say.

When our school days are recollections,
How we hope and how we pray.
We can reminisce together
Of graduation day.

CLASS HISTORY

Many people have often wanted to travel by ship. In September of 1944 our class of fifty students had our desire fulfilled as we boarded the "Ship of Education." Mr. Freeman served as our captain and his mates were: Mr. Brown, whom we lost, but Mrs. Lowry took his place; Miss Austin; and Miss Forsyth. Several of our crew started participating in the main school sports. Seven of our crew fell overboard this year for different causes.

Work in the Sophomore year was with the same captain but two new mates: Mr. Moser and Miss Sullivan. Out of our crew of thirty-eight members we lost two because of matrimony. Several of our crew achieved basketball suits. A few girls were chosen to serve at the Junior-Senior Banquet. With work coming along well, we decided we'd better make a stop in June of '46.

The crew of forty-five members, since we had several students join us from a neighboring school, boarded our ship with determination for success. We, the Juniors, had Mrs. Valentine and Miss Britt as new mates but lost Mrs. Valentine only to gain Mrs. Hollifield to take her place. Class officers were: Carl Price, president; Charles Johnson, vice-president; Aldeen Huopana, secretary, and Sarah Wilder, treasurer. Love found its way among our juniors this year and we lost three of the crew. We had the pleasure of presenting a Junior play, "Life at Aunt Minnie's," and giving the Seniors a banquet. Anne Boyette won basketball medals at the Kenly American Legion Tournament and Johnston County Tournament. We elected the future staff of the school paper for the trip we would take next year. This staff published the last issue which we received on this trip just before we hit port on May 19th, 1947.

In August 1947, we boarded our ship for the last time. This our last voyage, we put all our hearts into it. We had a war veteran to join us but lost another member by marriage, making our crew number forty-two. Three new mates joined us to help put the finishing touches to the trip. They were: Miss Hofler, Mrs. Powell, and Mr. Carswell. Class officers were: Charles Johnson, president; Wilbur Johnson, vice president; Aldeen Huopana, treasurer, and Sarah Wilder, secretary. How we rejoiced as we chose and bought our rings on October 27, 1947. One night on board the Juniors gave us a banquet and great was the celebrity, toasts, and speeches. This last year we published a great book called "The Corinthian." Into it we put our exploits and memories of all our happy voyages. The great news was brought to us that we were to hit port never to sail on this ship again, but to board larger "Ships of Education" and various other travels of life. We wish the next group who rides this ship as happy and successful a trip as we have had.

MARY RUTH HINTON

SENIOR PROPHECY

In the year 1957, I stepped into the Pan-American to which I was assigned as hostess to make a cross-country flight. To my amazement, there as pilot was an old class-mate of mine, Alvin Narron, and Cecil Price as co-pilot. As the plane warmed up, the head mechanic, who was none other than Haywood Brantley, gave it final inspection. I began to check my passenger list and found that Sarah Howell and Charles Ray Raines were on board and I later learned that this was their honeymoon trip. They informed me that they were on their way to take in a show at the Stork Club featuring Charles Johnson's orchestra with Virginia Rae Creech featured as pianist. Upon reminiscing further, I learned that Buice Creech had settled on a farm with his childhood sweetheart and was still raising prize cows and hogs, and that Willie Thomasson had taken over management of the Wendell Theater. I learned that Sadie Mae Philipps was the community school teacher.

Our plane took off and the first stop was Washington, D. C. We had a stop-over here and I encountered many of my old classmates. I met Rachel Murphy, who was secretary to Senator Taft, and we had lunch in the Strickland Brothers' cafeteria—proprietors Bennet and Coleman. We talked together of our old classmates and I learned that Lois Parrish was their cashier. It was soon necessary for me to leave, and as I passed the White House, I saw a very distinguished person dressed in the robe of the Supreme Court. I saw that it was Marshall High. He told me he was on his way to the law office of Carl Price, a quite famous lawyer, for a conference on a matter soon to come up in the Supreme Court. He said that Sarah Wilder was Carl's very efficient secretary. I hailed a passing taxi to return to the airport and as it pulled over to the curb, I immediately recognized the driver as Willard Hinnant. During our conversation on the way to the airport, he told me that Douglas Parrish and Riley Narron were operating a pool room at Emit, N. C. Soon it was time for my plane to leave and as I passed through the crowded lobby, I recognized Elizabeth Flowers. I stopped long enough to learn that she was enrolled in the John Hopkins' School of Nursing and that Billy Castleberry was interning there and making a big hit with the nurses. I walked with her to the reservation desk and to my surprise, Wilma Narron handed her the reservation. I bade my friends good-by and soon we were soaring into the air.

Our next stop was Nashville, Tennessee. I walked down to our hotel and as I registered, I noticed three familiar names on the registry. They were Robin O'Neal, David O'Neal, and Edward Green. When I came down that night, I ate dinner with Dave and Robin, who were hell-drivers with the State Fair and they informed me that Edward Green was the favorite singer of the Grand Ole Opry fans. I also learned that Wilbur Johnson was a scientist at Oak Ridge, helping study the facts of the atomic bomb.

I again boarded my plane and we were soon headed west. Our next stop was New Orleans and here I went out to enjoy the Mardi-Gras. I met another old class-mate here, Helen Kemp, who was on vacation with her husband, who was a jeweler.

The plane was soon on its way toward its next stop, which was El Paso, Texas. We went out to enjoy the nationally famous rodeo and found that John Skinner was the star. We learned that he was riding one of the famous Boyette horses which was raised on the Thomas Boyette ranch.

We were soon on our way to Nevada. Here we stopped and met Johnnie Green, who was securing her second divorce. She informed me that Rochelle Murphrey was typist in the Reno court room, rushing divorces.

I met my plane and once again we were soaring into the air—this time to San Diego, California. Here I met two old friends, Kate Narron and John Williamson, who were assigned to the same ship as navy nurse and sailor. I went up the street and into a swanky night club and was royally entertained by Annie Pearl O'Neal and Anne Boyette, who were leading chorus girls. We were joined by Norma Lee Hocutt, noted newspaper reporter, who was on her way to cover the plays of Janis Rose and Bobby Hinton at the all-American tennis tournament. They were partners in the world-wide tennis tournament. She told us that Melisse Pounds was a dress designer for a large manufacturer in San Diego and that Mary Ruth Hinton and Geneva Bowman were owners of a chain of exclusive fur shops.

As I boarded my plane once more, my heart was light because I had heard of each of my classmates and was so pleased at the career each of them had chosen.
